

Julia Brock is the Associate Director of the Geriatric Education Center for the Ohio Valley Appalachian Region (OVAR/GEC), which is headquartered at the University of Kentucky's College of Public Health. This project is funded by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (Health Resources and Services Administration).

Ms. Brock has worked on this project since 2008. She is involved in planning, implementing and evaluating aging programs for health professionals, students and faculty. She tracks the grant objectives and educational programs at UK and at OVAR's other consortium universities (University of Louisville, University of Cincinnati and East Tennessee State University). She participates in evaluation training offered by the National Training and Coordination Collaborative for Geriatric Education Centers and is responsible, along with the Director, for documentation and reporting narrative and data summaries to HRSA.

She serves on the UK Women's Forum board and as an advocate for the UK Health and Wellness Program. She also instructed classes for the UK Girls in Research program for middle school girls from Eastern Kentucky. She has worked for non-profit agencies providing outreach/education about violence against women.

Ms. Brock received a M.A. degree in Social Psychology from the University of Minnesota in 1994 and a B.A. in Psychology from the University of Kentucky in 1991 (Phi Kappa Beta academic honor society).
